

Mark Edmead

Mark Edmead is an IT Transformation consultant and trainer. Over the past 28 years, Mark has provided IT transformation and business improvement services that align information technology with business goals to drive bottom line performance and growth.

Mark has developed and delivered courses for the SANS Institute, MIS Institute, the University of California San Diego, the Institute of Internal Auditors (IIA), and the Technology Training Corporation. He is also an adjunct professor at Keller Graduate School of Management. Mark has delivered numerous international workshops throughout the United Arab Emirates, Kuwait, Japan, Hong Kong, Taiwan, Singapore, Malaysia, Switzerland, Germany, Chile, Mexico, and Scotland. Past clients include: BMW, Catholic Health Services, AARP, United Nations, Kaiser Permanente, Saudi Aramco, and U.S. Department of Defense.

PROFESSIONAL EXPERIENCE

Mark is a seasoned veteran when it comes to training, teaching, and creating courseware curriculum. Mark started his career as a Senior Instructor at the Institute of Internal Affairs, teaching courses that enhanced communications for auditors, operational auditing, and techniques for beginning auditors.

From there, Mark spent several years as an adjunct faculty member at several universities across the world, teaching a variety of courses in business development, cultural awareness, teamwork, motivation and coaching, and leadership in diverse organizations. He developed and delivered an Organizational Behavior graduate business class in Vietnam, a custom Knowledge Management course for the United States Joint Forces Command, and an IT Strategic Planning and Architecture course in Malaysia, Kuwait and Mexico.

Currently, Mark wears several different hats as a part-time adjunct professor, Senior Instructor, Courseware Developer, and IT Transformation Consultant and Trainer. He is currently teaching Strategic Management and Managerial Application courses as well as COBIT 5 Foundation and IT Security courses. In his role as an IT Transformation Consultant and Trainer, Mark is consulting and training companies in Agile methodologies, IT governance, strategic planning and much more.

Mark's experiences and expertise bridges the divide between IT personnel and the leadership and professional development training that is critical to the success of complex IT projects.
